The AI Race: How National Rivalries Hindered Progress on Global AI Safety

BY CRISTINA VANBERGHEM MARCH 6, 2025

The AI Summit held in Paris this month was expected to be a pivotal moment in shaping the future of artificial intelligence. However, it quickly became a sobering reminder of how national rivalries and conflicting regulatory frameworks are undermining the urgent need for global cooperation on AI safety.

The day before the Summit, I attended the International Conference of the IASEAI, where the first-ever International AI Safety Report was unveiled. This groundbreaking report addressed the existential risks posed by advanced AI systems. Motivated by its findings, I wrote an article arguing that while the AI Summit Series had established a strong foundation, its long-term success hinged on overcoming structural and institutional
